BIBLICAL STUDIES

Fall 2009
Course Schedule

Mondays, Sep. 14–Nov. 16

6:45–8:00 p.m.

0246 I Corinthians

Through the study of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, especially their divisive flaws and his unifying values, students will explore implications for contemporary church life. (Daniel Chin)

0152 Old Testament Prophets

Through a survey of the Old Testament prophets, students will develop a framework for reading prophetic literature and will discover how God's holiness and justice affects them today. (Nicholas Hsieh)

8:15–9:30 p.m.

0259 Epistle of James

Through the study of this general epistle, the student will discover how to become effective "doers of the Word." (Jace Cloud)

3120 Introduction to Black Theology

Through a study of the African-American Christian experience and theological development, students will identify ways in which culture influences one's thinking and spiritual formation. (Terrance Washington)

Tuesdays, Sep. 15–Nov. 17

6:45–8:00 p.m.

1000 Bible Study Methods

Practicing the three main steps of inductive Bible study—observation, interpretation, and application—the student will acquire skills for better understanding the Scriptures. (Ben Mogos)

1015 Advanced Bible Study Methods

By constructing subject-complement summaries of biblical passages, students will demonstrate their advanced understanding of the Scriptures. (Lisa Casimir)

4170 Post-Christian Evangelism

Through an evaluation of contemporary, American, post-Christian worldviews, the student will consider solutions for presenting and defending the Gospel. (Sam Tannenbaum)

8:15–9:30 p.m.

0268 Sermon on the Mount

Through a survey of interpretations for the Sermon on the Mount, students will enrich their understanding of Christ's great sermon and better apply His teaching to their lives. (Richard Carman)

4510 The Life of King David

By studying the life of David in the books of the prophet Samuel, students will discover ways to become people "after God's own heart." (Brent Boli)
